A. D. 60. 18 And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.^a

19 Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him;^b

20 Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death,^c and shall hide a multitude of sins.^d

^a 1 Kings 18:42, 45. ^b Matt. 18:15. ^c Rom. 11:14; 1 Cor. 9:22; 1 Tim.

4:16. ^d Prov. 10:12; 1 Pet. 4:3.

Elias as some superhuman being, whose prevalent intercession with God you are forbidden to imitate. He was a fellow-man with you, and a sharer with you of all the infirmities of human nature.

19. Err from the truth; depart from the faith and practice of the gospel. Convert him; turn him from his error to the belief and practice of truth and duty.

20. Hide a multitude of sins; cover them, by leading the person who has committed them to obtain, through repentance and faith in Christ, forgiveness of them. Compare Ps. 32:1: "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered."

INSTRUCTIONS.

3. Riches bring with them great responsibilities; and to hoard them, instead of using them in doing good, is a great sin, and one which draws down upon their possessor the judgments of heaven.

4. Persons who work for others have a righteous claim to full compensation; and the withholding of it from them is fraud, which will be visited with divine indignation.

8. The giving of directions by God to his people, as to the manifestation of a Christian spirit under wrongs, was not designed to justify or excuse those who wronged them, but to show the excellence of the Christian religion, and to increase the graces and promote the happiness of believers.

12. Profaneness is a great sin, every form of which should be carefully avoided by all, and especially by professors of religion.

14. The appeal of popish priests to the directions here given for the healing of the sick, to justify them in anointing with oil those who are expected to die, or administering what they call extreme unction, is a gross perversion; and it is only by perverting the scriptures, that they can gain even a seeming support for their practice.

16. Interpreting this verse as if it said, Confess your sins to the priest, is another gross perversion of scripture, which, when the Bible shall be read by all, will be seen. It is not strange, therefore, that the pope warns his people against reading it and judging of its meaning; because when they do, they will see that it condemns him.

18. Prayer, humble, believing, earnest, and persevering, has great influence with God, and is the means of procuring unspeakable blessings for men. All should therefore pray for whatever they need, in the name of Christ the one only Mediator; confessing their sins, not to the priest, but to God, who alone has power to forgive them; and thanking him for his mercies.

19. Brethren in Christ who turn aside from the path of truth and duty, must be brought into it again, or they will perish; and he who, from love to Christ and to them, is instrumental in doing this, and thus saving their souls from death and hiding a multitude of sins, will be hailed by them as an everlasting benefactor, and with them bless God for ever and ever.
