A light from our household is gone
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our hearts
That never can be filled.

Crutcher.—Mrs. P. C. Crutcher departed this life on February 1, 1888. She is not dead, but sleepeth. The last time I saw her was the evening before the fatal morning. Little did I think as I embraced her with a child's affection that it was the last time I should see her on earth. But the will of the Lord be done. All that live must die. All that knew her loved her. She was known to every body as Aunt Kate. As a mother she had few equals. As a guardian she was unsurpassed. Farewell, dear aunt, farewell for the present. Let us who remain make up our minds that we will meet her, not on this earth, but just across the river. Her nephew, FOSTER.
