VIEW OF JERUSALEM FROM OLIVET AS IT WAS IN THE TIME OF CHRIST.

ra'on (Heb. Aharon). The brother of Moses, and three years his elder. The eldest son of Amram and Jochebed, of the tribe of Levi, born B. C. 1571, probably at Memphis, Egypt. He was 83 years old when he sought out his brother, who had just received his summation as prophet and deliverer of the hardy youth. His natural eloquence fitted him to be the spokesman of Moses, who was very slow of speech (Ex. iv. 14-16).

appointed him as the first high-priest of the new nation. He may have been jealous of his brother's great and responsible position at the head of the nation, when he joined his sister Miriam in murmurs against him; but, on the appearance of the leprous plague in Miriam, he saw his error, repented, and begged forgiveness of God for both. For his want of faith at the rock of Meribah, he was denied the privilege and high honor of crossing over Jordan into the Promised Land, and died on Mt. Hor, at Mosera (Ex. xv. 1) and there is a tomb on the very summit of the mountain which is venerated as Aaron's, and
